

QUESTIONS YOU MAY HAVE DURING COVID-19

Is Elmwood Stock Farm still open?

As an essential business, Elmwood Stock Farm has remained open throughout the pandemic. We grow organic, nutritious food that is the sustenance of life, and we realize that many families are depending on us. We continue producing this food so you, and we, have something wholesome and healthful to eat.

How can I purchase Elmwood Stock Farm's organic meat, vegetables and eggs?

All of our markets are now online.

You have several pick-up and delivery options:

- In Lexington: Place your order online to pick up at the Lexington Farmers Market on Saturdays, 8 am to 12 pm, in the Rupp Arena parking lot, or allow us to deliver your order to your home, based on our weekly delivery schedule.
- In Georgetown: Place an order online to pick up from our on-farm store. We will generally have your items ready within four hours of receiving your order, 9 am to 4:30 pm. You can also place an order online to pick up from the Georgetown/Scott County Farmers Market on Saturdays, 9 am to 1 pm, or we can deliver your order to your home, based on our weekly delivery schedule.
- In Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky: Place your order online to pick up at the Hyde Park Farmers Market Pickup on Sundays, 9:30 am to 1:00 pm, on the on the Square in Hyde Park, or allow us to deliver your order to your home on Sunday.
- In Midway, Versailles and Frankfort: Place your order online for us to deliver to your home based on our weekly delivery schedule.
- In Louisville: Place your order online to pick up at the St. Matthews Farmers Market, Saturdays, 9 am to noon, or allow us to deliver to your home, based on our delivery schedule.
- Throughout the region: Our Summer CSA Farm Share is sold out. You can put your name on our waiting list to be notified if a spot becomes available. We'll also remind you when it's time to sign up for the Fall CSA.

What steps is Elmwood Stock Farm taking to keep my food safe?

Our job as farmers is to grow good food for our community, and we take it seriously. We are third-party certified organic, GAP trained, and food safety audited. What does that mean?

Elmwood Stock Farm has a Food Safety Plan in place, regularly updated, along with two team members who manage training, procedures and compliance.

All team members who seed, plant, weed, harvest, clean, pack, bag, box and deliver produce are trained on safe food protocols. This includes training on sanitizing, cleaning, hand-washing, sickness, injury and all the things to ensure safety.

We sanitize all contact surfaces in the on-farm store after each customer and throughout the day. All Elmwood Stock Farm staff wash their hands each time they enter the main building and throughout the day. We have social-distancing plans in place and wear masks when appropriate.

We remain vigilant in our processes and training, while incorporating additional important procedures per CDC workplace recommendations.

I've never had to cook at home this much. What should I be making??

Check out our Pinterest page for some of our favorite recipes using our healthful, organic vegetables and meats.

The joy of eating seasonally means there's something new to eat every few weeks. As the days get longer and warmer, selection will change every few days. This is an exciting time of year to be a seasonal eater!

As of this writing, we've recently enjoyed spinach and green garlic quiche topped with microgreens; sage meatloaf; fresh green salads with herb dressing; and garlic scape soup made with the farm's chicken stock.

Updated 6-3-20